

Everywhere Americans Are Demanding Quick Action On Peace Treaty

BY FRANK SIMONDS

For military men the world over it would be difficult to exaggerate the interest furnished by the portion of Ludendorff's narrative, being published, which relates to the great German offensive of March 21, 1918. Some of the questions which have been debated ever since, now find satisfactory and final solution. In addition, we see now with great clarity that when the whole Allied world was still passing through a period of crisis, British and the French armies toward the German High Command was endeavoring to bring about a military crisis rising out of a clear conception that its gigantic effort had failed.

To begin at the beginning, Ludendorff completely cleared up the question as to the German objective of March, two years ago. There was no thought of a new campaign for Paris, at the outset or during the first two months. Such geographical objective as there was, existed in the possibility of an advance in open country between the top of the five British armies and the coast. Out of such a victory Ludendorff expected to achieve peace on German terms.

But, as the event turned out, the Third British Army was not only beaten, actually it held off all of one German army and part of the second, fought its main antagonist to a standstill and inflicted such casualties that Ludendorff now makes no concealment of his despair on this subject. By contrast the Fifth British Army to the south, which was to be pushed back, turned, French reserves not only filled the gap, but were counterattacking, and what was before the Germans was the prospect of another Verdun.

Thereupon Ludendorff turned north and tried between Arras and Ypres. The Portuguese collapse on the 13th was even worse than that of the British Fifth Army on the Somme. But before the real success could be expected the French again appeared and the Battle of the Lys like that of the first days of April the lines began to harden, warriors of positions re-

Food Blockade Of Germany Ordered By Allies

PARIS, Sept. 30.—The blockade of Germany which was threatened by the allies in case the German troops of General Von Der Goltz were not removed from the Baltic region, will begin today, according to the Intransigent. No food ships, it declares will be permitted to start for Germany until further orders are issued.

Cossacks Flog Yank; Crisis Precipitated

VLADIVOSTOK, Friday, Sept. 19. (By the Associated Press)—Major General William S. Graves, command of American forces in Siberia, has demanded an apology from General Joroff, in command of Russian troops in Primorje province, for the arrest of Captain L. P. Johns, of the twenty-seventh regiment, and Corporal Benjamin Sperling, of the thirty-first, and the flogging of the latter by Cossacks, commanded by General Kalimoff. An investigation of the conduct of a Japanese officer at Imari, the place where the arrests took place, has also been begun by the American command. The incident, which occurred September 5, is considered one of the most serious since the allies landed in Siberia.

The two Americans in uniform and a civilian business went to Imari, a town 170 miles north of this city. While there at a hotel there, a detachment of Cossacks entered and arrested the Americans, claiming they were not provided with identification papers. Captain Johns managed to escape, and catching a moving train went to Spassko, where he reported to the American officer in command. A detachment of 150 Americans from the twenty-seventh regiment, at once embarked and went to Imari to effect Sperling's release and on arriving there, took three Cossacks as hostages.

They found General Kalimoff's men entrenched near the station and were prepared to use force against them, when a Japanese major interceded for the Cossacks, stating it is alleged, that in the event of hostilities between the Americans and Cossacks the Japanese troops at Imari would side with the latter. He at last told the Americans that Sperling had been taken to Khabarovsk, where General Kalimoff had his headquarters. A telegraphic demand for Sperling was sent to Khabarovsk and a reply was received that he would be released at once. The Americans then returned to Spassko, taking their hostages with them.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30.—Major General Graves, commanding the American forces in Siberia, is understood to have acted upon official instructions from the war department in demanding an apology from the Cossack commander for the flogging of an American soldier and investigation of Japanese interference between the American and Cossack forces.

General Graves has reported the incident in detail and army officials said today the situation was the most serious which has occurred since the American forces went into Siberia.

Street Cars And Buses May Stop

LONDON, Sept. 30.—It is anticipated in government circles that the service of street cars and omnibuses will cease today. The order stopping service, it is possible, may be issued at any moment.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Employment of troops to protect railroad property is being resorted to by strikers at some places, apparently due to the fear that the soldiers may be used as strike breakers. Speakers at a meeting tonight at Newcastle, Warwickshire, warned the government that serious consequences would follow the employment of troops. Dock laborers at Newport, Monmouthshire, have threatened to strike if soldiers interfered with railway men.

The Herald, organ for labor, features what it describes as a "seditious movement of troops" and complains bitterly that "everything is done to give an air of violence to what on the whole is a peaceful, lawful movement for better wages."

Distribution of troops to various centers with machine guns and military rounds of rifle ammunition, is reported, but there is nothing to indicate more than precautionary measures to protect depots and other properties.

NOTE.—This is the first of a series of three articles analyzing the effect of President Wilson's transatlantic tour and an impartial observation of social, industrial and political conditions throughout the trip.—Editor.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30.—No two correspondents on President Wilson's train would agree as to the effect on the Senate of President Wilson's appeal for an immediate ratification of the peace treaty and League of Nations. But out of the twenty-nine newspaper reporters of different religious creeds, the majority in fact all would probably agree that in at least one place—California—the President not only got an enthusiastic response from the people but the friendly kind of support from Republicans hitherto counted as the staunchest supporters of the man who is the chief opponent of the treaty—Senator Hiram Johnson.

With respect to many other states the truth is the basic between those who favor the League and those who oppose it was so evenly drawn as to make it almost impossible to say with certainty how much of the Democratic opposition for the President was respectful consideration for the individual laborers of the man while in public life and how much was an expression

Ludendorff Knowing His Army Was Beaten, Urged An Immediate Peace Before The End Of September

Ludendorff threw up the sponge before the end of September, 1918. Such was the pass to which he had come in consequence of the defeat of Bulgaria, his fears for Austria and Turkey and the condition of his own army that he could not wait for the Berlin government to make peace. He took the matter up himself and sent for the Foreign Secretary to prod him into action immediately. He wanted to get terms before the Allies became aware of his debacle. In this desperate situation it was decided to appeal directly to President Wilson.

Those who fear the Germans in the future may claim that their army was not really beaten should take note that Ludendorff himself decided to beg terms even before the Hindenburg line was broken and Americans smashed his front in the Argonne. These great military feats he dismisses as mere details of the disaster he had already discounted.

By GENERAL ERICH LUDENDORFF

I very soon became clear that nothing more was to be expected from Bulgaria (about Sept. 22, 1918). The division from Sofia was sent to Nish. The King abdicated and left the country. The government threw itself into the arms of the Entente. The army scattered itself to be disbanded.

Before Hindenburg Line Was Broken And Great Battle of Argonne Fought, He Knew He Must Sue For Peace—Could Not Wait For Berlin To Act.

SENT FOR FOREIGN SECRETARY VON HINTZE AND DECIDED TO APPEAL TO WILSON

The conclusion of the armistice, which would hand the country completely over the Entente, was to be expected at any moment.

The position in Roumania remained in the highest degree obscure and anxious. We could bring but few troops thither, even including those from the Caucasus.

In the East the Bolsheviks were still hostile. Our policy in Great Russia had won us no friends who could now help us.

There was the utmost doubt as to whether we could succeed in establishing in Serbia and Roumania a new flank protection for Austria-Hungary and our Western Front, and in keeping up communications with the Roumanian oil fields.

In Italy an attack was sure to come, and it was quite uncertain how the Austro-Hungarian troops there would fight.

The general military position could only become worse; whether it would more slowly or with terrifying speed could not be foreseen. It was probable that matters would come to a definite conclusion in a relatively short time, as actually happened in the Balkans and on the Austro-Hungary front in Italy.

A Treat Of Half A Century—For You

FANS for fifty years have been faithfully waiting to see Cincinnati win a pennant and take part in a world series. The pennant is won and tomorrow the Reds get away in the big baseball classic. Hundreds of baseball followers in Portsmouth have been denied the privilege of being at the game in person. But they are not to be denied the right to receive the results of the games play by play a few seconds behind the time they are executed. The Times Associated Press leased wires goes direct to Redland field. As soon as a play is made—in fact while it is being made—the results are flashed over the wire direct to The Times office. These results will be megaphoned immediately to the fans who are invited to be the guests of The Times every afternoon during the world series. Remember the games start at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Although the games start this year a little later in the afternoon, due to the difference between eastern and central time, The Times will carry complete accounts of the games in the evening edition. The management of The Times, believing its readers are desirous of having the account of the games complete the afternoon they are played, has decided to hold its city edition a short time until the final out is made and the last play flashed over the wire.

CHARGE MUST CEASE

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 30.—The state public utilities commission today overruled motions of the Cincinnati and Suburban Bell Telephone Company and the Cleveland Telephone Company for a rehearing on the commission's order suspending the government charge of $720 for installation service. Unless the commission's order, this charge must cease beginning tomorrow.

WILL RUN MORE TRAINS

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Congestion in railroad traffic, caused by the strike called on Friday, is expected to be relieved today by the running of an increased number of trains. Volunteer workmen are reported coming forward to run the trains and the government has invited citizens to act as special constables in emergency.

PRESIDENT'S CONDITION IS IMPROVED

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30.—President Wilson, after two days of quiet and rest at the White House, showed further improvement today. Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, his personal physician, issued the following bulletin at 11 a. m.:

"The president had a good night's rest and is improving."

WHITLOCK NOMINATED AMBASSADOR

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30.—Brand Whitlock, of Ohio, now minister to Belgium, was nominated today by President Wilson to be ambassador to that country.

Senate Probers Are To Visit Pittsburg District

Three Negroes Lynched Within Twelve Hours

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 28.—Senator Kenyon, chairman of the senate labor committee investigating the steel strike, wired union headquarters today that the committee hoped to visit the Pittsburgh district the latter part of this week or the first of next, dependent upon the voting on amendments to the peace treaty.

The committee requested William Z. Foster, secretary of the steel workers' national committee, to appear before the committee in Washington Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Mr. Foster said he would appear.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

THE inclusion of the Bethlehem Steel Company's plants into the strike area has so far only served to broaden the scope of the conflicting claims of the opposing sides.

The night day of the great struggle opened with the situation on all the battle fronts virtually unchanged, mill officials issuing their customary statement that, more men were returning to work and union leaders countering with the equally customary assertion that the strike was spreading and victory certain.

No definite developments were reported from the Pittsburgh district while the only positive item from the Chicago field was the official statement from the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company that its plant, employing 4,000 men, would be closed down within the week "for repairs."

get him into an automobile and he was shot when he refused to go with them.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 30.—John Temple, negro, who last night shot and fatally wounded Patrolman John Kearney and who was wounded by the officer, was shot to death in a hospital, shortly after 2 o'clock this morning by a small band of white men. He was the third negro to die by lynch law within a period of 12 hours. Miles Miller and Robert Crosby, the latter a discharged soldier, having been shot four white men had attempted to of support of the ideas he was expressing. Street crowds appeared everywhere in some cities, mildly enthusiastic in others and wildly almost fanatically glad in other cities to see the President and to him honor.

Owing to the limited size of the halls, auditoriums, theatres and arenas where the President spoke, relatively few people, perhaps not more than 150,000 were able to get within earshot. The great majority of the American people read Mr. Wilson's speeches in the newspapers either in full text or summary. At the outset of the trip the President's utterances were carried in full on the press association wires but later on as he crossed the continent, only excerpts were sent eastward.

Unfortunately for the President, the best speeches were on the Pacific Coast from which place owing to the three hours difference in time, afternoon newspapers in the central and eastern time belt got only the briefest accounts of his night speeches made in several cities in California, Oregon, Washington and Montana would surely have been late for morning newspapers and thus were hardly reported at all. The migration rule in newspaper offices that a "yesterday's happenings" is old news militated against a repetition of the President's speeches to any length in the afternoon newspapers of the east day. So the bulk of the President's argument has not been published though a collection of these speeches is being printed in the Senate Records and an effort will be made to have them reach the people as public documents.

I said "unfortunately" for the President because he made his clearest arguments on the Pacific Coast. He made the most effective exposition of his case only after he got further west and seemed to warm up to his subject and really take cognizance of the objections to the covenant around which public opinion was beginning to crystallize. It was not until he reached Spokane, for instance, that he tackled the question of why Great Britain should have six votes in the assembly to America's one. He didn't touch specifically on reservations until he reached Montana. The President was estimated as he went westward. He learned what impression had been implanted in the public mind. In a nutshell, here is the substance of the main arguments made by the President for the passage of the Treaty and the League of Nations:

America contributed a large army, raised billions of dollars and sacrificed thousands of lives not merely to beat Germany but to prevent another world war from devastating civilization.

Nine months would be required by the terms of the treaty and League for arbitration or official discussion of international disputes. During that period potentially would surely be afforded for peace to cool. Had there been nine days given to international conference in 1914 there would have been no war.

America is already bound by treaty with thirty nations of the world and to go to war for one year while disputes are submitted to joint commissions for discussion. Therefore in self protection America should be foremost in asking other nations to subscribe to the same principle of action through the League of Nations.

Any nation agreeing by signature of the peace treaty to submit disputes to nine months arbitration or discussion and then refusing to do so will be subjected to an economic embargo—that is it will be permitted no food or goods of any kind, no business intercourse of any sort and will be isolated and thus compelled to lay its case before the nations of the world.

Should something stronger than economic force be necessary, the council of the League of Nations on which sits an American Representative shall advise what other steps shall be needed to compel obedience and the preservation of peace.

No action can be taken by the council without the consent of the American representative because of an unanimous vote is required. The American delegate would be subject to instruction by the President of the United States, who in turn is constitutionally made to declare war without the consent of Congress. So that the power of the American representative at the seat of the League of Nations would be little different from that of an American Ambassador at any foreign capital.

No action whatever affecting the employment of military or naval forces can be taken by the assembly of the League without Great Britain has six votes. The assembly takes no action but orders opinion on questions submitted to it. No opinion of the majority of delegates in the assembly can be valid unless in that majority is included all the nations represented on the council, the veto of the United States can invalidate any opinion, the British colonies will not act as a unit but may more often side with the United States than with some of the smaller nations of Europe, not so close by as to the people of the United States either racially or politically.

The President insists that the moral force of the League will be even greater than its physical force and that provision made by it for international conferences on matters of labor, health, and the advancement of human society generally will make for a better civilization.

With respect to Ireland, the president never mentioned that country specifically, but he went far toward describing the case of Ireland so that it became not lost on his audience. He said article ten referred only to "external aggression" and that the territorial integrity of no country was protected against internal revolution. Again and again he said the Paris conference had recognized the right of revolution as sacred. Furthermore, the president said in effect that under the League it would be possible for the United States to speak up in the councils of the League for any nation, including Ireland, for example, and not being orders opinion on questions submitted to it.

REPUBLICANS CHARGED WITH HECKLING

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30.—After further sharp criticism by Republicans of the senate and house today of the landing of American sailors at Tran after Italian forces had taken possession of the port, the senate adopted a resolution by Senator New, Republican, Indiana, requesting President Wilson to transmit a report of the incident to the senate.

Although not opposed by the Democrats, the resolution caused a lively row in which Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, Nebraska, charged the Republicans with "heckling" President Wilson and also with deliberately ill-treating to delay action upon the peace treaty.

Republican Leader Lodge denied there had been any ill-treating on the treaty and said there would be none.

You Are Interested to Know WHY
THE D. & M. CORD TIRE COMPANY
Represents The Best Investment Opportunity You Can Secure

THE RUBBER INDUSTRY

The Rubber Industry is the fourth largest in the United States, and is unparalleled by any other industry in the country for its rapid and consistent development. There are over 6,000,000 cars in daily use in this country alone. Added to this are the great foreign markets, and the ever-increasing demand for tires through the use of commercial cars and trucks.

PROFITS IN THE RUBBER INDUSTRY

The advent of the motor car and the consequent demand for tires and tubes, means a wonderful opportunity for profitable investment. Millions of dollars have been made and are being made today in the rubber industry. Those who have had the foresight to invest in tire companies when first formed, have had their investment multiply, in some cases, hundreds of times in value,—and the opportunities for profits in this industry are greater today than ever before.

THE DEMAND FOR CORD TIRES

Buyers of tires are becoming educated. They know tire values. The demand for cord tires has doubled in the past six months, and it is recognized as the coming tire, because of its extra long wearing qualities.

The only reason it is not used exclusively today is the fact that the old established tire manufacturing companies are equipped primarily for the production of fabric tires, and they cannot afford to scrap their huge investment in fabric tire building machinery. In spite of this condition, Cord Tires are recognized as the inevitable tire of the future.

WE WILL SPECIALIZE IN CORD TIRES

The D. and M. Cord Tire Co. has as its General Manager, Mr. Walter R. Denman, one of the best known Cord Tire specialists in the country. He is a mechanical, electrical, industrial and rubber engineer, with an established record of having been instrumental in perfecting two of the best Cord Tires on the market to date.

OUR PLANT

Costly experimental work which other rubber companies have had to do in the past is absolutely unnecessary with this company. Mr. Denman has already perfected the D. and M. Cord Tire at a saving of thousands of dollars to this company and its shareholders.

This company is building one of the most modern and scientifically equipped plants in the entire rubber industry. It will be located at Warren, Ohio, on a large tract of ground given this company by the Warren Board of Trade, in consideration of our bringing this great industry to Warren. Our factory site has the added advantage of excellent shipping facilities and an absolutely unlimited water supply, so essential in the manufacture of rubber goods.

OUR RAPID PROGRESS

Our plant has been designed by The Osborn Engineering Co., specialists in designing plants for the manufacture of rubber products. Every energy is being directed to the erection of our plant and its completion at the earliest possible moment.

OUR OFFER

The company offers a portion of its 7 per cent. Preferred Stock for a limited time only, with an attractive Bonus of Common Stock both Tax Free and Non-Assessable.

Our special representative, Mr. I. Williams, is now in Portsmouth, with headquarters at 53 First National Bank Building, and will be glad to tell you more of our plans and the profits which this company is going to make for its shareholders.

Sunday School Teachers Institute In Session

At the afternoon session Mr. Mayer talked on "Developing Worship and The Present Day Sunday School." Mr. Post made remarks on the same subject after Mr. Mayer had completed his talk.

These young men are well equipped with knowledge of the Sunday school and are bringing helpful subjects to the Bible teachers and workers with them.

This evening the last session of the annual Sunday School Teachers and Leaders' Institute of Southern Ohio will be held at the Second Presbyterian church. The afternoon session opened at 7:30 o'clock and the evening meeting at 7:45 o'clock. Everyone interested in the subject should attend tonight, when an illustrated lecture will be given on "The Bible."

There was a goodly number of Sabbath school workers in attendance last night when the evening was given over to an illustrated lecture on "The Bible." Mr. Mayer, Young People's superintendent of the Ohio State Sunday School Association, made the talk on "The Bible" last night in place of J. K. Morgan, of Huntington, who was supposed to speak. Attorney Marston of Huntington, who arrived Monday, talked at the afternoon session, as he had pressing business which demanded his return to Huntington yesterday evening. He has had much experience with boys in juvenile work in his home city and is at the head of the department in his church, which is a trend to none in the country.

Mr. Mayer has had much experience with the illustrated lecture and gave an interesting talk along with the slides, but without avail. It was declared that the development of the child from birth to three years, from three to six years, from seven to nine years, from nine to eleven years, from eleven to thirteen years, from thirteen to fifteen years, from fifteen to eighteen years, from eighteen to twenty years, from twenty to thirty years, from thirty to forty years, from forty to fifty years, from fifty to sixty years, from sixty to seventy years, from seventy to eighty years, from eighty to ninety years, from ninety to one hundred years.

It is a problem for the adult, the child and mother, the teacher and preacher and the public. Why not give the boy a fair square chance? W. W. Bates, superintendent of Second Presbyterian Sunday School, is chairman of the sessions. Last night George P. Host conducted the devotional part of the program. Rev. R. B. Cartwright leading in prayer. This morning at the nine o'clock session Mr. Mayer had charge of the devotional part of the program. The first talk of the morning was made by Mr. Mayer on the "Sunday School." He touched on its organization, its system of working and benefits. After his address Harold P. Post of Washington, D. C., who is a Bible School graduate, supplemented Mr. Mayer's talk.

WOMAN DRIVING FROM THIS CITY TO COLUMBUS IS HELD UP AND ROBBED BY AUTO "FOOTPADS"

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 30.—While driving to Columbus from Portsmouth, Miss Mary Burton, 245 Oak street, a school teacher, was held up by two auto bandits who after severely beating her, drove away with $21 taken from her purse. Before they left the scene of the holding up they locked the steering gear of Miss Burton's car, cut the garage battery and light wires and closed it down hill to a level where it stopped across the road.

The holding up occurred on a cross road about a mile and one-half north of Columbus. Miss Burton stated Monday that the men had started to follow her just out of Chillicothe and her efforts to escape them were futile. Finally they drove their car in front and over the top of the road and she was forced to the running board of hers, ordering her to stop. Miss Burton was dragged out of her machine to the road, and her purse thrown to the man who remained in the other machine.

For several minutes Miss Burton screamed for help while the bandits made a hasty search of her traveling bag and automobile for additional money. Becoming frightened when they thought they heard the approach of another machine, they then left after leaving Miss Burton over an embankment. From there she managed to make her way to a farm house to call for help.

A search was instituted for the two men, but without avail. It was declared that two men in a machine answering the description of the bandits had tried to follow another machine earlier in the evening but had been frightened away by the driver of the car playing the revolver in front of him as he passed. The bandits were seen driving toward the stranded car of Miss Burton without lights, but without making any attempt to stop. Miss Burton tonight last year in the rural schools of Florida County, Kentucky.

Engine On Warpath

One of the windows of the N. & W. automobile was broken out Monday morning by a small number of boys when one of the engines sent a brick flying through the wall. The engine on the front street, toward the work and the engine came near some work and the brick broke through the wall. The bricks applied just as the pilot showed its nose through the wall.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS INTERESTING SESSION OF WOMAN'S CITY CLUB

Many women attended the regular session of the Woman's City Club Monday afternoon at the Security Bank building, the assembly room being liberally packed. The women were addressed by F. J. Raymond, who said that he could not address the women in the same free, happy-go-lucky manner that he used in speaking to men, for he realized that "everything of real value in the people who have charge of them during this time."

"One of the things women ought to be most interested in is the school," he said, "and that there is soon to be a school board election and this phase of public life is in a woman's sphere. Women who part with their children for the greater number of hours of the day, will naturally be chiefly interested in the people who have charge of them during this time."

"What we have to get what you want," said Mr. Raymond, as he gave the receptive audience a few pointers to the "half handed way of democracy."

Mrs. William H. Schwartz presided at the meeting, supplementing the talk of Mrs. Pearl Selley, who is chairman of the enrollment committee and who outlined briefly the working unit of the Woman's City Club. There are 1000 members in the club, 200 of which are in the city. These women in informal manner are responsible for the looks in this way. They will oversee the sanitary needs of their block and will try to beautify it. They will receive all suggestions of the neighbors.

Mr. Raymond urged the women to follow the lead of the three which would keep Portsmouth where it should be and would require but one or two hours each day, only once a month, the results being far-reaching in their beneficence to the city.

"The lead is in your city life. Make it your business to make two or three new friends each meeting."

He further urged that indifference of the women to the school, which is the life of the city, be overcome. He said that the school is the life of the city, and that the women should be interested in it. He said that the school is the life of the city, and that the women should be interested in it.

Have the home, could you do plain sewing? I tell you in this age when women no longer dwell at home contemplating their troubles with a martyr-like air, and becoming imbued in their stagnating existence, there is nothing the modern, well-balanced woman cannot do if she wants to do it. If you need further help write to me for it and I will do the best I can. Any woman can become the mistress of her fate if she will. You can.

MRS. HILLTOP—They are still in town. Watch for the notice in the advertising department of the paper.

WANT TO KNOW—Following are directions for canning sweet potatoes: The canning of sweet potatoes with uniformly success results is difficult. It is very much better to use correct methods for storing them than to can them. A sweet potato that is dry and mealy is most desirable to can. The Farmer's bulletin suggests using the Nancy Hall Triumph, or the Southern Queen varieties.

A continuous period of processing at boiling is advisable for home use. Select absolutely sound potatoes and grade, putting together those of the same size. Boil or steam until three-fourths done. Peel and pack hot in cans to prevent discoloring. Process 5 to 6 hours continuously at boiling, or 70 minutes at 250 degrees F.

SOCIETY

The quiet hush which heralds the approach of autumnal event, prevailed in Pond Creek church this morning, while the sweet strains of organ music by Mrs. Arthur Gerlach, accompanied by Mr. Arthur Gerlach with the light notes of the violin, made more solemn the impressive ceremony. Mrs. Adolph Huth very graciously sang "Ave Maria" and "O Promise Me" just before the happy music from Lohengrin, which announced the coming of the bride, Miss Mary Elizabeth Simon, who entered with the groom, Mr. Daniel Charles Prose.

The altar was transformed with a profusion of dahlias and roses, which lent their golden and pure white colors so effectively in adornment. The bride was lovely in her girlish frock of dainty white satin and

When My Baby Was Sick

I SHALL never forget that dreadful day when I wondered if anything would ever agree with my baby. Of course, I had tried to nurse him, as every mother should. And we had tried almost everything, it seemed—but he wouldn't gain weight or have the pink cheeks I prayed for.

And then our old doctor said, "Let's try Nestlé's Milk Food. You know that it is made out of milk—the nearest thing in the world to mother's milk. They add cereal and sugar to bring the right amount and the tough milk curds are broken up and easier to digest."

As I wait, a steady, two-year-old plays happily up to me and the dreadful day seems far away—for my baby is well.

Nestlé's is very easy to prepare. Nestlé's is pure milk in powder form that is already modified and does not require the further addition of milk. Always pure and safe, always uniform and free from the dangers of home modification, Nestlé's has saved the lives of three generations and has today the largest sale of any baby food in the world.

Happy Mothers

Many mothers who in order to keep the home neat and attractive, the children well fed and dressed continually overdo.

The experience of motherhood alone causes a severe strain upon the system, from which many women recover slowly, and serious feminine disorders may develop unless great care is taken to prevent them.

To such women Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is invaluable. For many years this root and herb medicine has been recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills, restoring them to a normal, healthy condition.

Mrs. Morgan's Case
East Hampton, N.Y. — "For two years I suffered with a female weakness, pains in my back and painful periods, and I was so weak and tired that I was not able to do my work. A friend told me to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it gave me great relief. My pains left me and I am now able to do my work and feel fine. You can publish my testimonial and if your Vegetable Compound does others as much good as it has me I will be very much pleased."—Mrs. CHARLES E. MORGAN, C. E. L. Dennett.

A Word to Childless Women
There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disorder which in many cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial.

Examiner Reports On Firemen's Pension

The following is the state examiner's report on firemen's pension. Tomorrow will appear the first installment of the examiner's report of the audit of the books and administration of the fire health department.

FIREMEN'S PENSION
March 1, 1917—September 30, 1918
Semi-annually the council appropriates within the public safety fund a certain amount for the purpose of paying monthly stipulated allowances to certain retired or disabled firemen and the dependents of firemen whose deaths were more or less attributable to injury received while in the performance of their duties.

On September 30, 1918, the monthly payroll and allowance was as follows:

John Collins	$20.00
Francis M. Fagan	20.00
Charles W. Rowe	20.00
Mary E. Boyles	20.00
Mary A. Zornes	20.00
Bertha Latham	20.00
Burling Latham	20.00
Beatrice Latham	20.00
Louisa Simpson	20.00

Prior to August 1, 1918, allowance to Burling and Beatrice Latham was six dollars monthly.

It would appear from the available information and records that the amount of the allowances, at least since May 1, 1903, has been determined and fixed by council or the finance committee thereof in conjunction with the board of the public safety department. It would further appear that such action has been ostensibly based upon the authority comprehended in the provisions of Section 4323, General Code, which section provides in part:

"Council may provide by general ordinance for the relief out of the police and fire funds of members of either department temporarily or permanently disabled in the discharge of their duties."

Under the provisions of the law above quoted the council may make provision within the safety fund for the relief of firemen who are in the service and incapacitated, but there is no authority thus granted for the relief of dependents of firemen who may have become disabled through injuries received while in the service.

The method in vogue for the furnishing of relief as above noted was referred to the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, the said Bureau responding under date of November 18, 1918, as follows:

"The only legal method for the relief of firemen who are no longer able to remain in the service, and the families of firemen, is under the firemen's pension fund sections of law. The real work must be handled by the trustees of the firemen's pension fund. We are quoting from the opinion of the Attorney General under date of June 29, 1914, Annual Reports for 1911, page 923, as follows:

"Section 4312. Such trustees shall make all rules and regulations for the distribution of the fund, including the qualifications of those to whom any portion of it shall be paid and the amount thereof, but no rules or regulations shall be in force until approved by the director of public safety or the fire chief of the municipality as the case may be."

"It is clear that the legislation above abstracted contemplates the possibility of the inclusion of others than the members or former members of a fire department in the class of beneficiaries of the pension fund. It is also clear that it lies within the power of the trustees of the fund to determine the qualifications of the beneficiaries, and that they must act by general rules and regulations subject to the approval of the director of public safety or fire chief, as the case may be."

The trustees must request a budget, which goes before council, but distribution of payment of benefits rests with such trustees.

The conditions obtaining in the city of Portsmouth as to the manner of determining the amount and the payment of relief to disabled firemen and the families of firemen should be immediately corrected and adjusted."

Sections 4300 to 4315, inclusive, General Code, set forth the manner in which such relief may be determined and as to how the funds may be obtained, managed and paid out for said purpose.

The method in vogue is clearly illegal and if it is desired to furnish relief to disabled firemen and families of firemen, the council, under the provision of Section 4300, General Code, should at once declare the necessity for the establishment and maintenance of a firemen's pension fund, and under sections 4301 and 4302, General Code, provide the revenue for the operation of such fund.

After provision has been made for the establishment and maintenance of a firemen's pension fund, there should immediately be created a board of trustees of said fund, who shall have the management and control of same.

There should be an immediate discontinuance of the present practice and the auditor should refuse to issue any more warrants for the disbursement of the public funds, especially for the payment of relief to the families of dependents of deceased firemen.

round beyond the Canal, although every possible step had been taken to prevent them. Further south up to the Vedic the front held.

In Chambray and on the western bank of the Meuse a big battle had begun on September 25. French and American troops attacking with far-reaching objectives. Westward of the Argonne we remained masters of the situation and fought a fine defensive battle.

Between the Argonne and the Meuse the Americans had broken into our positions. They had assembled a powerful army in this region, and their part in the campaign became more and more important. We held their push, however, the 22nd being in the main a day of success for us, while on the 28th we held our lines, apart from certain modifications of our front which were carried out in accordance with our plans.

Americans Went Seven Miles
The Americans were "held" after they had advanced seven miles across the most formidable defenses of the Western Front, a labyrinth of trenches and all sorts of obstacles which had held up attacks of the French. They took 12,000, the great Mount St. Eloi, 5,000 prisoners. Their advance was "held" because they were unable to bring up guns and supplies over the difficult country, but was resumed when these supplies could be brought up in sufficient quantities.

The whole Western Front was thus again the scene of tremendous fighting.

On September 29 and following days there was further fighting, bringing about difficulties, but not compelling us to make momentous decisions. (He thus briefly discusses the great feat of the Americans and British in breaking the Hindenburg line, that great system on which the Germans had expended every possibility of their engineering skill and workmanship. It was the 27th Division from New York that led the way across the line, capturing the great fortified tunnel of the St. Quentin Canal. A British division swung this canal in support. These same days the British and Belgians were pushing ahead in Belgium and the Americans and French on both sides of the Argonne Forest.)

"Had to Ask for Peace"
I wish to insist on the statement above in what follows, as earnestly as I do upon the fact that since the middle of August the Government had done nothing whatever to secure peace. This did not surprise me. Was it for G. H. Q. to wait until Turkey or Austria-Hungary, who were more urgently affected than we were, moved in the matter? That would have been easy, but did not seem to me to accord with my duty.

Were we to look, after all our pressure, that the Government would at this stage spur the people to further efforts, or would really take a step towards peace through the medium of Holland? Were there any real prospects of this? Duty compelled us at last to substitute action for idle time-wasting and empty words.

"The enemy had to be asked for peace and armistice. The military position, which could only get worse, demanded this."

We were not yet bound to surrender unconditionally. The enemy would have to speak. Would he talk of conciliation or of silence? In my judgment of Clemenceau and Lloyd George I feared the worst. Wilson, however, had often stated his terms in the most solemn form imaginable. He, and the great country he represented, must themselves be bound in honor by these declarations.

Pinned Hopes on Wilson

Besides, the decisive help given in France by the United States, without which the Entente would long before have suffered a military defeat, made it highly likely that Wilson would be able to maintain his views, which he had expressed in the most binding manner, against England and France.

We had to secure a clear vision on this matter. If one views of Wilson were right, then we could accept as the basis of negotiations his fourteen points, hard enough, but, at any rate, clear and definite. If, on the other hand, we were disappointed in him, the enemy imposed too severe conditions. If, then, their military chiefs refused us the respect to which our brave struggles entitled us, then the fight would have to continue, however hard it might be, and then at last the Government and the people might be brought to realize moments when at last they saw clearly what was at stake for Germany in this war.

It was in this respect that I simply could not give up hope of a new moral reinforcement at home. If the enemy gave the same answer as he did in

In these circumstances I felt compelled to undertake the responsible task of hastening the end of the war, and for this purpose to move the Government to decisive action. Since the 11th of September G. H. Q. had heard nothing of the peace proposals placed before the Queen of Holland. Since the middle of August there had passed without answering letter, received from Barfleur's headland but no success in diplomacy in the face of the enemy's determination to destroy is fact a hopeless task.

With all this in mind, I came, not suddenly, but bit by bit, from the beginning of August onwards, and through many hard inward struggles, to the conclusion that I must act, and I called Secretary von Hintze to Spa September 26.

Meanwhile the position in Berlin had become most disconcerting, the struggle for power coming ever more prominently into the foreground. The outward and visible sign of this struggle was Erzberger's attack on Count von Hertling, which had raised passions to a very high pitch.

The Emperor's appeal of August 11 for a united and resolute Government had remained unanswered. I have never fully understood the contents of those days. I did not regard the position of the Chancellor as seriously shaken, his great Parliamentary experience having hitherto enabled him to ride every storm. Events in Berlin caused von Hintze to fix his arrival as late as Sunday, September 29. The Chancellor was also invited to attend by Count Limburg-Sillem. On

Temporary Injunction

Alleging that her former son-in-law, Oscar Sutton, has frequently, since September 3 last, trespassed upon her property at 4212 Gallia avenue, New Boston, and that while on the property he has committed various offenses, including the use of force and threats to kill her, Lillian Hays in a suit filed in common pleas court today through Attorneys Miller, Miller & Smith, seeks an injunction to prevent Sutton from further molesting her.

In her petition the plaintiff declares she is in poor health and extremely nervous and complains that Sutton's trespasses and assaults cause her to be greatly frightened and in fear of her life.

In the absence of Judge Thomas, who was in Jackson Monday, Judge Gilliland granted a temporary injunction restraining Sutton from repeating the acts complained of pending the final hearing of the case.

JUDGE JAMES S. THOMAS ENDORSED AS SUCCESSOR TO LATE JUDGE HOLLISTER

At a special meeting of the Scioto County Bar Association Monday night Judge James S. Thomas, of this city, was unanimously endorsed as a successor to the late Judge Hollister, of the United States District Court, Cincinnati.

The endorsement came unhesitatingly and a pleasing surprise to Judge Thomas, who was in Jackson Monday and did not learn of the association's action until this morning.

It is a life time appointment, and Judge Thomas' many friends are hopeful that he may land the appointment, as he is thoroughly capable of fulfilling the duties of the judicial post so ably and conscientiously looked after many years by Judge Hollister, who was one of the best known jurists in the Buckeye State.

Floyd Evans, plain drunk, was taxed the usual $5 and costs and action was suspended in the cases of George Schaffer and Kate Marsh, who appeared to answer complaints of failure to obey orders of the board of health to abstain from drinking.

Victims of murder were held not to have been prejudiced by the failure to arraign him. In the Michigan case the presence of the defendant during the trial, and his failure to object to the proceedings, was held to be a waiver of his rights.

The new question raised so suddenly has excited much interest in the county.

NEW POINT RAISED IN FIVE CASES

JACKSON, Sept. 30.—The hearing of the motion of William W. Rife for a new trial was heard yesterday before Judge James S. Thomas, of Portsmouth, presiding in the Jackson county court. The defendant was represented by Ex-Attorney General Jos. McElroy, of Columbus, and Hon. Charles H. Jones, of Jackson, while Russell Kepper, of Columbus, appeared with Prosecutor John G. Evans for the state.

The arguments lasted for two hours and a half and the case was taken under advisement by Judge Thomas. The main question was the error alleged in failing to arraign Rife. He was arraigned in due form in Case No. 4571, in which the indictment charges him with having sent an instrument with intent to secure property of value. But when the time for the trial came, it was found more convenient to take up the indictment in No. 4847 charging forgery, and he was not arraigned.

Mother said that he had not learned of the failure to arraign until that morning, and Jones said the same, and the error was not mentioned in the motion filed some two weeks ago. The questions of venue, handwriting and other minor matters were discussed, but the failure to arraign was the main issue. It will be recalled that the case was submitted to the jury without the offering of any evidence or argument by the defendant. Mother held that the failure to arraign was a fatal error. Prosecutor Evans took the opposite view and quoted many authorities, notably a case from the Washington Courts in Pacific Reports 47, Page 227, and a Michigan case in North Western Reports No. 120, Page 604. In the first, a man co-

Bewitching MAE MURRAY
In Her Most Appealing Picture
THE BIG LITTLE PERSON

It was her as she came away from the doctor's office with her fate written in her face—destiny for life and he fell in love at first sight. Yet he didn't know she was dead, nor did she know that he was to give her back her hearing.

Double Program At The Exhibit Tonight—Bewitching Mae Murray in Her Latest Appealing Picture, "The Big Little Person" and Universal's Big Fairy Story "Sinbad, The Sailor"

Two unusually pleasing features will be the attraction at the Exhibit tonight for the first time in Portsmouth. First comes Bewitching Mae Murray in Universal picture, "The Big Little Person," in which Miss Murray, the former Follies Girl, is seen as Arlette Maudslayi, a tender-hearted little school teacher. The story tells of the lonely struggle of a young woman whose lover deserts her at the shrine of her affliction of deafness. She is alone in the sense that she has been cut off from the world of sound by deafness, following an epidemic of scarlet fever that broke out among her little flock of school children. But everything works out all right in the end and an eminently pleasing conclusion has been developed in the story. We know you will like this play. The second attraction the night will be Universal's delightful fairy story of "Sinbad, the Sailor," acted by a cast of a hundred children. Mildred Harris Scores New Triumph in "Forbidden"

New Offering Thought To Be Best in This Star's Entire Career
In the opinion of many motion picture lovers who watched the new Mildred Harris feature production "Forbidden," the picture is the best she has ever made. This renowned screen star, who became one of the most talked of women in America when she married Charlie Chaplin last October, has eclipsed in her latest picture anything she has done for the camera.
"Forbidden," the latest David Greenglass production, is built around the story of "The Forbidden Box," by E. J. Lagergren.

ADOLPH ZUKOR presents

MARGUERITE CLARK

Don't Miss Marguerite Clark and Eugene O'Brien in "Come Out of the Kitchen."

If you were to have the opportunity of seeing two of the world's foremost motion picture stars in one of the greatest stories ever written for the stage, wouldn't you jump at the chance? Well, it is coming your way tomorrow. The star, Marguerite Clark and Eugene O'Brien. This story? "Come Out of the Kitchen." This is the play in which Ruth Chatterton was carried to fame almost overnight and which has delighted millions in story form and upon the stage. You really cannot afford to miss it when it is shown at the Lyric Theatre tomorrow and Thursday. Who ever heard of a girl, and a beautiful one at that, who wanted to stay in the kitchen all the time, instead of being the real society lady that she was? We can't say any more without giving away the story, but Marguerite Clark tells how it happened in her newest and best picture. Miss Clark is well supported by a picked company, Eugene O'Brien being her leading man.

Grace Darnold in "What Every Woman Wants."

If You Think You Know "What Every Woman Wants" Come To The Strand Tonight and Learn That You Don't Know!

An announcement of great interest is that the Strand will present to its patrons tonight a play that has had a remarkable run wherever it has been shown.

It's title is "What Every Woman Wants." The girl in this picture is played by beautiful Grace Darnold. You'll enjoy this picture and also the music by the Strand Trio, headed by William Brownfield.

Miss Traverse in "The Love That Dares"

Madeline Travers will be seen at the Strand theatre tonight in "The Love That Dares," a William Fox production. This play, again stars Miss Travers as an opportunity to register on the screen her great dramatic power. "The Love That Dares" deals with the wealth class.
Harry M. Miller, who directed "The Danger Zone" and "Climbing in the Sky," in which Miss Travers has already appeared, directed "The Love That Dares."

One of the strongest casts assembled in any picture during the current season is that appearing in support of Marguerite Clark in her latest Paramount picture, "Come Out of the Kitchen," which is shown at the Lyric Theatre for two days, beginning today. Miss Clark's leading man is Eugene O'Brien, who has played opposite the star in several of her recent pictures, but Frederick Bronson, who is now in "Paramount" pictures, is an experienced actor who has a most important part in the picture. Mr. Bronson returned recently from France, where he was last fall in the ranks of the Knights of Columbus as one of the players who volunteered to be sent to the front, leaving the cost of the picture to the Lyric Theatre. "Come Out of the Kitchen" is the story of a girl who, in order to take the love of a man, is forced to become a prostitute.

A MESSAGE TO SUFFERERS OF RHEUMATISM

Scioto Furnace, Ohio
Sept. 29th, 1919.

To Whom It May Concern:

I had suffered with what Medical men termed Rheumatism in my hips for six months, with continual suffering, the pain almost unbearable. I could not stand for my children to be in the same room. I had been under the care of four Medical Doctors, two said that my case was incurable.

I had up to this time spent not less than one thousand dollars and my condition continually growing worse, then I was told of the success Chiropractors had with Rheumatism and decided to give Knechtly and Knechtly, Chiropractors, a trial. I began taking Adjustments on January 23rd, 1919, and after taking eighteen adjustments I was entirely cured. It has been seven months and no signs of returning. I might say that after the very first adjustment my pain was not so severe and I rested much better at nights, then after the fifth adjustment I could put on my shoes, something that I had not been able to do for six months.

Those suffering with Rheumatism I would advise to go to Knechtly and Knechtly.

Made Talk To Students

In an address this morning in the chapel before the High School student body, F. J. Hays, of the Daily Sun, one of the highest world's scale to the point and gave the students some real facts.
There are three principles of public speaking, said the speaker, and "I have something to say, say it; and say it down. The main thing is to say it down."
The speaker was often interrupted by applause.
Following are some of the Hays' remarks quoted from the speaker's talk:
"Education is talking over the things of the world to get it."
"If I had sufficient rest, I could sleep."
"Your worth depends on the amount of watching you get—and you need it."
"The error of a lead pencil is to point to correct the mistakes made by the other end."
"Money buys only four things: Food, shelter, clothes and recreation. There are some things that money can't buy."
"Futurist Judgments."
"It is rather regrettable that people are so much concerned in matters of fact, over the accuracy of their judgments with the judgments of the wise men of the future. It is really something of such very small importance. The proper way to relate oneself to pictures is just to look at them—often, if one is interested, occasionally if one is not.—The New Republic."

THE MOVIES

Ethel Clayton in "Petigrew's Girl"
A Paramount Picture
Columbia Tonight Only

When the filming of Ethel Clayton's new Paramount picture, "Petigrew's Girl," which will be displayed at the Columbia tonight, only, which started the Majestic Theatre in Los Angeles was used for the big theatre scenes in the story. But after a few scenes were made, director George Melford decided he would require even more space.

So they hurried back to the studio and constructed an enormous setting representing the stage boxes and part of the orchestra of a genuine New York playhouse, such as distinguished the best of the Broadway theatres.

The big studio tank was used as the orchestra pit and several rows of seats were also arranged therein. Altogether, the set was one of the largest and most realistic ever put up at the studio, and spectators will have a hard time realizing it is only a set, and not the interior of the Winter Garden or the New Amsterdam Theatre in New York.

Part of the musical comedy picture is given on this stage in the picture, and for the dancers in this picture or so lovely girls from the leading theatrical school were secured.

Miss Clayton has in this picture the role of a chorus girl, Monte Blue and the role of Petigrew, a boy soldier, Mary Paramount. Good times are expected every Tuesday night.

Pat Moran Tells How He Molded Reds Into Winning Team

Engineered Deals That Plugged Up Weak Spots

BY PAT MORAN

(Manager of the Cincinnati Reds)
As I look back at my earliest days as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, I admit that there was plenty of reason for the discouragement that sometimes came to me—but which I concealed from my players.

Everything broke wrong at the beginning and it was a long, long time before they began breaking the other way.

I'd been told that I was failing here to "the worst ball club in America." But my instincts were in error. I didn't have a ball club at all when I assumed the managerial job. Instead of a complete infield, I had only three basemen. I found that Earl Naege was the only outfielder who had come to terms. My Wingo was "the existing staff" and the pitchers either were rookies or men who were found wanting by other leaders.

Chase, Magee, Kopf, and Grotz made up the 1918 Cincinnati infield. Of the four, only Grotz remained. Magee was a holdout and Kopf had been traded to the Dodgers. Eddie Roush, our star outfielder, was holding out and threatening to quit the game.

Then I got busy.

A deal was engineered with Brooklyn whereby we secured Jake Daubert to play first base. Finding that Magee had determined to stand pat, and learning at the same time that Kopf had refused to report to Brooklyn, I got in touch with Wilbert Robinson and made a trade. I gave the holdout Magee for the holdout Kopf, after learning that Magee would be glad to play with Brooklyn and that Kopf was anxious to stay in Cincinnati.

A settlement was made with Daubert and he was back to Cincinnati. I then signed up the veteran Sherry Magee, completing the infield. A hunt for a second baseman began and I settled upon Morris Rath as the man for the job, despite the fact that he had been discarded by the White Sox.

Having recruited the infield and the outfield, my next thought was the battery. I needed a seasoned catcher and an experienced pitcher. Learning that

And it was then that I was doing the hard work with my pitchers. I paid no attention to Salter. I knew he would get into shape—that he needed no schooling from me. Nor did I spend time with Ray Fisher, the veteran whom we had secured from the Yankees. But I had my hands full with Reuther, Eller, King and Lague.

Reuther had been let out by the Cubs because he was wild and ineffective. It took time and patience to teach him control but he proved an apt pupil. A little change here and there in his style of delivery, the following of the few suggestions concerning change of pace—and Reuther was one of the most brilliant performers in the National League. I spent a lot of time with him but not as much as I have spent with other pitchers who never even remotely approached Reuther in hurling ability.

Jimmy King had been turned aside by Wilbert Robinson. And the baseball world knows that Robinson is a person in the developing of pitchers. But I was fortunate enough to find a few changes in King which Robinson overlooked. And those were the things that enabled me to help King to help himself—and the result was that Jimmy King is one of the reigning sensations of baseball of 1919.

Eller, another discarded player, required no more time in development work. And the same thing goes with Lague, the youthful Cuban. Seldom or other there was a perfect understanding between the pitchers and myself from the outset and as teacher and pupil we got along famously. There was never the slightest semblance of friction.

A little pat on the back, a few words of encouragement and a little advice was all that the boys needed. They listened to my talk of "We are going out for the pennant" in incredible fashion at first. But as the season wore on and we bowled over one team after another, they became imbued with the spirit—and then began the fight that never ended until we had clinched the National League pennant.

STAR BOARD GIVES FANS REAL ACTION

Thousands of dyed-in-the-wool fans, who for some reason have been denied the thrills of the real World Series, are planning an invasion on Star Baseball Player board.

This board follows each play, each inning and each out, and more, just a minute after it is executed.

ed in the game. Programs are not necessary. The players' names are always before the audience. The latter is named as he assumes his position. When the ball is struck, a white ball takes the same course on the board. Every move of the ball and players are accurately and plainly recorded.

In big cities, crowds around the automatic baseball board are so dense that the average American is unable to give proper vent to his feelings.

In the Millbrook ball park there will be seats and tremendous rooting. Howard York and Hugh Higgins have secured this big feature for Portsmouth fans and their efforts in this direction are sure to be appreciated.

Wednesday, the first game will be played at Millbrook.

The Star Board Player will be located near the pitcher's box in full view of all patrons.

Business Men To Hear Speakers On Taxation

A committee of the Business Men's Association reported at the luncheon of the association held Tuesday noon that three watchmen had been hired to police the business district during the night season.

The men hired for this work are: Charles Hans, Joseph Bonzo, and James Ellis. Hans said Ellis will police Chillicothe street between Second and Eighth streets; and Bonzo will work on Galia street between the Security Bank and the Star Grocery.

The salaries of these men have been guaranteed by the merchants in those districts. Arrangements have been made to have a collector call at the various business houses and it is requested that the merchants, if they are unable to be in their places of business when the collector calls, will leave the money so that the collector will not have to call the second time.

The second call would only increase the expense of operating the watchman system.

The Association, at their Tuesday meeting, also voted to hear a speaker who will be sent by The Ohio Taxpayers' League, Columbus, Ohio, to discuss the classification of taxes and answer any questions concerning that subject.

This speaker, whose name has not yet been announced, is expected to address the association on Tuesday, October 7th, during the lunch hour.

THE TERROR OF THE MOB

THE most insensate and fiercest fury ever exhibited by a mob was shown Sunday, when a Negro was lynched, the court house burned and the mayor hung, almost to death, the indifference of policemen rescuing him in an unconscious condition. The provocation was the usual one, an assault upon a woman. The lynching lacked no element in the display of the diabolical passion of the mob. For nine hours it raged in ineffective attempts to get at the Negro, who was confined in jail, and not succeeding until the court house was set on fire and the flames from it driving the sheriff and his prisoners to the roof of the adjoining prison. Then the wretch was seized, ripped about his neck, dragged to a telephone pole and strung up. He was insensible to the tortures hung upon him as he was instantly beaten and shot into insensibility. While hanging hundreds of shots were fired into his body. This was tame sport soon for the mob and it soon took him down and placed his body on a bonfire. But a few moments, however, was it permitted to remain there and again was a rope tied to it, things bearing the outward form of human being seized the cord and dragging the body up and down the main streets, while a shouting, yelling crowd of thousands followed in their wake. It does not appear where any profit can come of moralizing or reproaching for this black and bloody tragedy. It is a frightful proof of the right of position we have always maintained, that the same crime at the north will sway the same fierce vengeance as is taken at the south therefor. So men, who so unctuously denounce the south for like barbarities are worse than whitened sepulchers, they are themselves a raging beast, needing only provocation to stir them to blood and violence.

THE DAY IS APPROACHING

A notable development of the past weeks, though conditions appeared to be altogether adverse thereto, was the distinct upward trend of government securities. Victory loans were within a small fraction of being at par and all the Liberty bond issues were stronger. According to the New York World the advance was justified in, if not resultant of, the fact that it is shown that up to date the government has already retired its war securities to an amount exceeding seven hundred million dollars, or approximately one-third of the aggregate issue. This action it was able to take through purchases in the open market and payment of estate and inheritance taxes with them. Payments on account by foreign governments, on loans made to them, were not heavy, being less than a total of thirty-five million. Doubtless, however, such payments will from now on, only increase steadily in number and amount. Taking all these conditions into consideration and coupling them with the fact that the number of those whom necessity or improvidence drives to parting with their bonds is rather diminishing, the prospect that there will be, at least a par market, is entirely encouraging.

AN EFFECTIVE WEAPON

GERMANY has been ordered to withdraw troops in Lithuania under the control of General von der Goltz. To this she sets up the plausible plea that they are outside her domain and beyond her control, so she is unable to do anything with them. The weak spot, however, in her pretext, is that she offers no proof that she has tried to do anything, and displays no desire to do anything if she could. Happily an easy solution is at hand. The war council has delivered an ultimatum that unless the recall is promptly made effective a blockade will be established and no food permitted to enter the German country. That will prove effective instantly. Germany has begun to taste a sufficiency of food and realizes what it means. The Allied food commission has sent vast supplies thereto and relatives from the outside world are pouring in small stores in such multitude that they have become a factor of moment in relieving the general distress. So to Germany the dilemma is one that has only one horn and she has to take that. Von der Goltz will come marching back home in a hurry. The worst is yet to come in this after the war extravagance. London is going to put yellow stocks, green waist coats and ruffles on the extremity of men's breeches and as we have sort of taken to the manner of "turning up our pants" every time it rains in England, of course, there's nothing to do except follow suit. The Brooklyn Eagle says whenever a dollar goes out and sees a price tag it begins to feel like thirty cents, and the worst of it is it begins to act like so much.

A contemporary is lamenting "Cause already we are having some fits with our allies. Nothing in that to worry about. Members of the family wrangle among themselves, but look what happens to the outsider when he mixes in. Well, that's the way it will be in the great family of leagued nations."

Unless appearances are mighty deceiving, Scioto county will gather some corn crop this fall, and the hickory nut crowd isn't bad either.

Pretty blessed land this Saturday night saw the finest market crop ever for the season and there was plenty of money to buy it.

Election only a month off, but there is mighty little fussing over it.

SHE MARRIED AN AVERAGE MAN

I feel like a chip being carried along by a swift current. Jim is the current. I can't help looking disappointed. I could help looking disappointed. I dislike for Charles Belton grows with every visit he makes. "By the way, dear," Jim added, "I wish you'd try to be a little more friendly to Charlie. You're animated and sweet to everybody else. When he comes you shut up like a clam." "I'll be as nice as I possibly can. I'll make a salad and get the sandwiches and coffee ready. Shall I put on my pink dress?" Jim looked embarrassed. "Oh, no, kitten, don't bother. Er—well, I'm talking business—er—don't you want to run over to the Wyeth's or to your mother's perhaps?" "That is typical of how I am always excluded from Jim's affairs. I would give my right hand to be like Susie Ballin, whose husband has a news and magazine shop down by the station. Susie lends the shop when Mike isn't there, and they are partners in everything. The earning of an extra dollar is the signal for Susie and Mike to dance around the room over! Susie is allowed to be a real wife. I did not answer Jim, but as I was leaving the house I summoned an air of sweetness that I did not feel. "Auf wiedersehen!" I called. "You're not afraid to go out alone?" asked Jim. "Indeed not," I cried merrily. "I'd have to learn not to be afraid of things if we went to New York." Jim puffed his pipe while I might have counted six. Then he looked down toward the floor and said quite firmly, "We are going." (To be continued.)

New - York - Day - By - Day

BY
O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—In the feverish hunt for old Joey de Vire, the famed Broadway brilliant, banished by the great drought, some odd entertainments are being dished up to entertain the popular hereabouts. One sees in the morning prints an announcement that an old house in the Thirties is being remodeled to house a "Palace of Checkers." Think of that! From the Broadway viewpoint it will be as easy to construct an entertaining evening with games of checkers as it is to fashion a silk "pursue from the material contained in a tany pig's angular appendage. One might as well designate a button sewing contest for men only in the Kickerbocker grill. The billboards are fairly blighted with announcements of musical events at local concert halls. Former jazz houses are to be the homes of pianists, and the male—broadly speaking—tenors, to say nothing of lyrical sopranos and infant prodigies. All the infant prodigies are found in Hester street. There is something about the squalor there that makes them sprout rapidly and soon they are taking root in some music hall in the White Lights. Nothing is so terrible as the money making infant prodigy, known in the press agent's argot as the wonder-kid. He or she generally is the sole supporter of a big family who sit up all night after the concert quarreling over the box office receipts. Another horror, or series of horrors, is the classic dance. An epidemic of these far-logged performances sweep the town. All summer they have been chasing butterflies in the rustic dells of Long Island, interpreting the shimmering softness of the moon, the dandelion in anger and the swirl of sea waves beating against the white sands. Now they are expressing themselves all so much an expert in town. After seeing them one can readily understand how the Puritan ancestors saw so much sin in promiscuous dancing. New York laughs at Greenwich Village with undisguised cruelty. It can't take very seriously the Yonkers Odettes and Bonias with their bobbed heads and smocks. And yet Jean Murat, the French journalist of Le Matin, declared at a little gathering of intellectuals the other day that New Yorkers were doing a great wrong. In Paris the Latin Quarter has always been regarded with respect and Mr. Murat believes Manhattan should be indulgent even if the Village is naughty, even if it is debauched. He says that a great city has all the perils of a beautiful woman and perhaps Greenwich Village is the necessary speak of rouge—the unflinching touch! The old fashioned Ascot tie—a blessing to the fellow with the soiled shirt—is to be a part of what the well-dressed men will wear this winter. They are to be seen among the smart dressers on Fifth Avenue and Broadway speaks highly of them in his theatre program editorial blurbs and incidentally a lot of snappy dressers follow the theatre programs religiously for their styles.

There is a celebrated pawn shop in the heart of the Tenderloin patronized chiefly by the elite of the stage and sporting world. The three gilt bells painted black and the sign "Money lent" is not in evidence. Neatly lettered in gold in a corner of one of the windows are the words: "Jewelry Appraised." The entrance is always locked and barred in front. The real entrance is up a side street.

And Still They Talked
A man went home to dinner. He passed the corner of Fifth and Washington streets at 11:30. Two women were standing on the sidewalk talking to each other.

The same man, as was his custom, came back to work at 12:30. He passed the same corner and saw the same two women still standing on the sidewalk, talking in the same old way.

As Irvin Cobb would say: "Oh! well, you know how women are!"

Show Me To 'Em
"Oh, my friends! There are some spectacles that one never forgets," said a lecturer, after giving a graphic description of a terrible accident he had witnessed.

"Ahem!" spoke up an old lady in the audience. "I'd like to know where they sell them."

Worn Out
After coming in from a twenty-mile "hike" the officer in command of a negro company said, before dismissing them, "I want all the men who are tired to take another hike, to take two pieces forward!"

All stepped forward except one big, lanky six-footer. Noticing him, the officer said, "Well, Johnson, ready for twenty miles more?"

"No sah," replied Johnson; "Ah'm too tired to even take dem two steps."—Lesbree's Hercules.

Chivalry
"I hope I can escape jury duty, as I have important business to look after. But who's the stunning girl?" "Plaintiff in the next case. A dog bit her on the ankle."

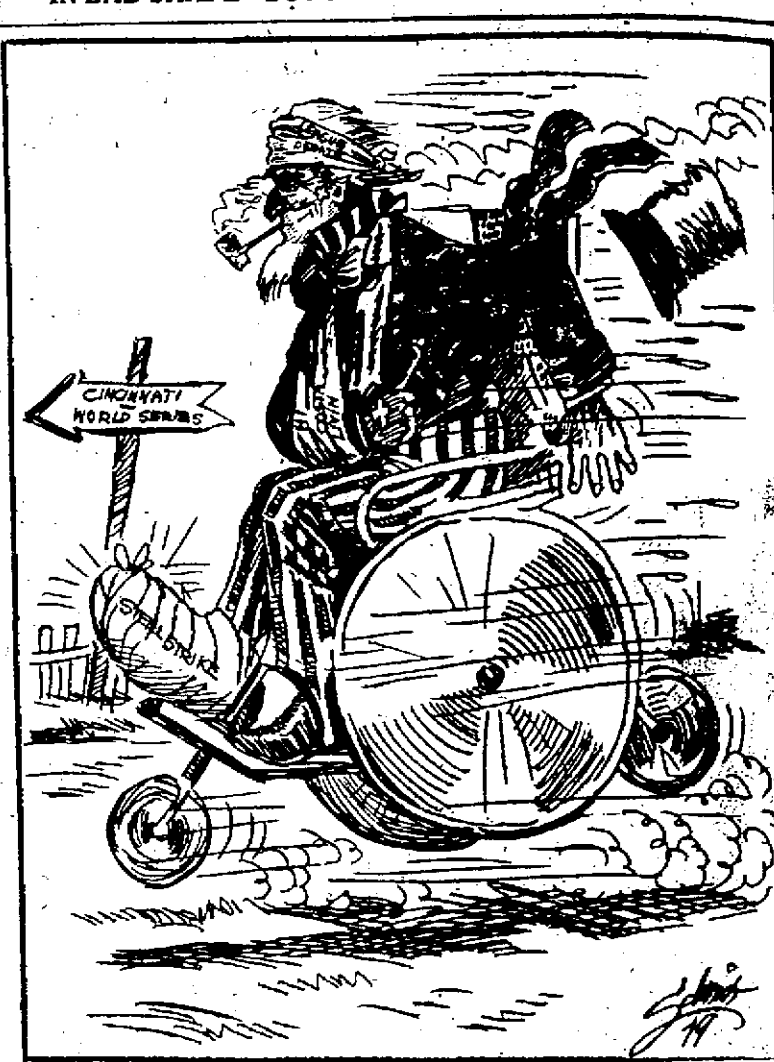

"I guess I'll serve."

Absent Minded
"Go!" exclaimed Mr. Gabb. "Just look at the face on Mr. Naylor! Did you ever see such a homely man in your life?"

"Hush, my dear," smiled Mrs. Gabb, sweetly. "You forget yourself!"

The Fruit Business
"Mother, is father in the fruit business?" "No, son. What put such a question in your head?"

IN BAD SHAPE—BUT HE CAN'T AFFORD TO MISS IT!

U. C. T's. Hold Meeting

River City Council No. 11, United Commercial Travelers held a meeting Saturday night and besides receiving a number of applications, initiated one candidate, Gilbert Kendall, of the Standard Supply Company. The class in salesmanship arranged for each meeting is expected to be of much benefit to the members. The best talent will be secured to address the men at each session.

J. W. Luckey of Blue Grass County gave an interesting talk Saturday night on the old and new traveling salesmen.

John Sudenfeldt, former well known Portsmouth saloonist and bartender, who has been located at Montgomery, Ala., for several months, is planning to return to his native home in Germany, soon. Writing to Probate Judge Gilliland for a certified copy of his naturalization certificate Sudenfeldt stated that he had applied for his passport. The records in the probate office show that Sudenfeldt obtained his final naturalization papers on May 23, 1901, George M. Osborn being probate judge at the time.

COSSACKS FLAY YANKS IN SIBERIA PRECIPITATE SERIOUS SITUATION

APOLOGY IS DEMANDED OF COSSACKS

VLADIVOSTOK, Friday, Sept. 19. (By the Associated Press)—Major General William S. Graves, commander of American forces in Siberia, has demanded an apology from General Kozlov, in command of Russian troops in Primorye province, for the arrest of Captain J. P. Johns, of the twenty-seventh regiment, and Corporal Benjamin Spertling, of the thirty-first, and the flogging of the latter by Cossacks, commanded by General Kalmikoff. An investigation of the conduct of a Japanese officer at Imari, the place where the arrests took place, has also been begun by the Japanese high command. The incident, which occurred September 5, is considered one of the most serious since the allies landed in Siberia.

The two Americans in uniform and on official business went to Imari, a town 170 miles north of this city. While they were at a hotel there, a detachment of Cossacks entered and arrested the Americans, claiming they were not provided with identification papers. Captain Johns managed to escape, and, following a moving train west to Spassko, where he reported to the American officer in command. A detachment of 150 Americans from the twenty-seventh regiment, at once entered and went to Imari to effect Spertling's release and, on arriving there, took three Cossacks as hostages.

They found General Kalmikoff's men entrenched near the station and were prepared to use force against them when a Japanese major interceded for the Cossacks, stating, it is alleged, that in the event of hostilities between the Americans and Cossacks the Japanese troops at Imari would side with the latter. He at last told the Americans that Spertling had been taken to Khabarovsk, where General Kalmikoff has his headquarters. A telegraphic demand for Spertling was sent to Khabarovsk and a reply was received that he would be released at once. The Americans then returned to Spassko, taking their hostages with them.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30. (By the Associated Press)—Major General Graves, commanding the American forces in Siberia, is understood to have acted upon official instructions from the war department in demanding an apology from the Cossack commander for the flogging of an American soldier and investigation of Japanese interference between the American and Cossack forces. General Graves has reported the incident in detail and army officials said today the situation was the most serious which has occurred since the American forces went into Siberia.

Cincinnati Is Jammed With Baseball Fans

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 30.—With seats of their favorites for victory in the first game, the all important world's series here tomorrow, Cincinnati assumed a gala appearance today as the throngs of visitors began to arrive to witness the initial struggles of the base ball classic.

Hotel corridors were jammed to the limit and the congestion grew greater as the day advanced and the special trains began to arrive. While spectators of the Cincinnati club were naturally concerned over the prospect of box seats for three games, the

CLAIMS OF LEADERS IN STEEL STRIKE CONFLICTING

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—After a day of futile efforts of the big steel mills in the Chicago district to induce a sufficient number of employees to return to work in order to operate on a much larger scale, chief attention today turned to the United States Steel Corporation plants at Gary. With many minor acts of violence reported to the police last night, further developments today were anxiously awaited. Union leaders were perturbed as they heard repeated reports that the temper of the strikers was rising.

Pat Moran Tells How He Molded Reds Into Winning Team

Engineered Deals That Plugged Up Weak Spots

BY PAT MORAN
(Manager of the Cincinnati Reds)
As I look back at my earliest days as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, I realize that there was plenty of reason for the discouragement that sometimes came to me—but which I concealed from my players.
Everything broke wrong at the beginning and it was a long, long time before they began breaking the other way.
I'd been told that I was falling heir to the worst ball club in America. And my information was in error. I didn't have a ball club at all when I assumed the managerial job. Instead of a complete infield, I had only a third baseman. I found that Earl Dean was the only outfielder who had come to terms. My Wingo was the "catching staff" and the pitchers either were rookies or men who were found wanting by other leaders.
Chase, Magee, Kopt, and Groh made up the 1918 Cincinnati infield. Of the four, only Groh remained. Chase had been shipped along to the Giants. Magee was a holdout and Kopt had been traded to the Dodgers. Eddie Russell, our star outfielder, was holding out and threatening to quit the game.
Then I got busy.
A deal was engineered with Brooklyn whereby we secured Jack Dribble to play first base. Finding that Magee had determined to stand pat, and fearing at the same time that Kopt had returned to report to Brooklyn, I got in touch with Wilbert Robinson and made a trade. I gave the holdout Magee for the holdout Kopt, after learning that Magee would be glad to play with Brooklyn and that Kopt was anxious to stay in Cincinnati.
A settlement was made with Russell and he was back in line. I then signed up the veteran Sherry Magee, completing the infield. A hunt for a second baseman began and I settled upon Morris Rath as the man for the job, despite the fact that he had been discarded by the White Sox.
Having recruited the infield and the outfield, my next thought was the battery. I needed a seasoned catcher and an experienced pitcher. Learning that

And it was then that I was doing the hard work with my pitchers. I paid no attention to Salvo. I knew he would get into shape—that he needed no schooling from me. Nor did I spend time with Ray Fisher, the veteran whom we had secured from the Yankees. But I had my hands full with Teuthe, Eller, Bing and Lingo.
Teuthe had been let out by the Cubs because he was wild and ineffective. It took time and patience to teach him control but he proved an apt pupil. A little change here and there in his style of delivery, the following of the few suggestions concerning change of pace—and Teuthe was one of the most brilliant performers in the National League. I spent a lot of time with him but not as much as I have spent with other pitchers who never even remotely approached Teuthe in hitting ability.
Jimmy Ring had been turned aside by Wilbert Robinson. And the baseball world knows that Robinson is a genius in the developing of twirlers. But I was fortunate enough to find a few things in Ring which Robinson overlooked. And those were the things that enabled me to help Ring to help himself—and the result was that Jimmy Ring is one of the reigning sensations of baseball in 1919.
Eller, another discarded player, required no more time in development work. And the same thing goes with Lingo, the youthful Cuban. Somehow or other there was a perfect understanding between the pitchers and myself from the outset and as teacher and pupil we got along famously. There was never the slightest semblance of friction.
A little pat on the back, a few words of encouragement and a little advice was all that the boys needed. They listened to my talk of "We are going out for the pennant" in tremendous fashion at first. But as the season wore on and we bowled over one team after another, they became imbued with the spirit—and then began the fight that never ended until we had clinched the National League pennant.
